THE PROJECT

The project CLINK aims to raise awareness on connections of the collective cultural heritage in the tapestry of Europe's rich and diverse culture.

The project engages and stimulates exchanges between 10 partners from Croatia, France, Greece, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Serbia, Montenegro and Albania.

The project consists of international and local actions focused on cultural heritage and its European dimension by ways of engagement, sustainability and innovation.

The main topics are cultural heritage as a source of urban regeneration; citizens' participation in preservation of cultural heritage; restoration and regeneration of cultural heritage sites

OBJECTIVES

- Strengthening citizen engagement in the field of preservation of cultural heritage by raising awareness on cultural heritage, history and European values
- Stimulating dialogue on the policies for promotion and preservation of cultural heritage between young people and state and non-state cultural actors.
- Representing and reimagining public, industrial, religious and military heritage sites in order to assure their preservation and sustainable valuation
- Promotion of responsible and sustainable tourism for the development of cultural heritage

ACTIVITIES

Through planned activities the project stimulates citizen participation and exchange of good practices by way of discussions, forums, study visits, art events. The project engages a diverse group of stake holders such as: state and non-state cultural actors, entrepreneurs, craftsmen, designers, architects, youth groups, local authorities and CSOs.

OUTCOMES

- Raised interest in cultural heritage among stake holders and the general public
- Raised awareness of EU policies on cultural heritage and ways of its promotion, protection and sustainable use.
- Reinforced sense of belonging to a common European space.
